Wedding Bells

SENECAL--BUNNEY

A wedding of much interest in the Chinook district was solemnized when Miss Gwendolyn Bunney, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Bunney of the Rearville district, became the bride of Mr. Lionel Senecal, eldest son of Mr. G. Senecal of the same district, on Wednesday, December 4th at the United Church parsonage by Rev. Mr. Smiley at Cereal.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Monica Bunney. The bride wore a gown of peacock blue silk and the bridesmaid was also dressed in blue.

The wedding dinner was served on Thursday at the home of the brides parents.

The table was centred by a three-tier wedding cake which was a gift of the bride's aunt and uncle of Calgary.

The following guests were present: Messrs Don Robertson, Angus Mcmillan, Whaley and John Patrack and Mr. Senecal. After having had several hours of enjoyment Mr. and Mrs. Senecal left for their new home on Mr. Suiter's beautiful farm, when they were pursued by a charivari crowd which consisted of all their nearest neighbors. The Advance joins their many friends in wishing them a very happy married life.

The Ladies' Card Club met Tuesday evening at the garage with Mrs. Meeres as hostess. Honors went to Mrs. Robinson and Mrs. Seeger.

The weather this week has been quite mild, after extremely cold days Sunday and Monday. While the cold weather has been fine for curling and skating, we are glad to have the mild weather again.

Only eleven more shopping days before Christmas, so do your shopping early and avoid the last minute rush. See the local ads for your Xmas requirements.

A number of young people from Chinook attended the dance in Cereal last Friday.

Jas. Guss of Drumheller was a Chinook visitor last week.

Mr. Geo. E. Aitken left Wednesday night by train for Edmonton and Huxley where he will visit with friends prior to going to Vancouver where he will spend the winter months.

Miss Amelia Belmont visited friends south of Stanmore last week.

"What is your name?" asked the teacher of a boy. "My name is Jule" was the reply. Whereupon the teacher impressively said: You should have said Julius, sir; and now my lad, turning to the next boy, what is your name?" Bilious, sir" . . . .

Is it a question of what to do about the Christmas Concert, or what to get the 'Boy Friend for X'mas', that makes the teachers furrowed brows, lately,

2 Things That Combat Colds Like Magic!

Ask Any Doctor . . . Then Follow Simple Directions Pictured Below. Quickest, Simplest Way

1. Take two "Aspirin" Tablets. Make sure you get "Aspirin".

2. Drink a full glass of water. Repeat treatment 2 hours.

Instead of using fancy priced "cold remedies" try the new-day cold treatment pictured here. Your own doctor will approve it. It will start easing the average cold or sore throat almost as fast as you caught it. The "Aspirin" you take will start combating your cold or sore throat at once; if throat is sore, crush and stir 3 "Aspirin" Tablets in a glass of water; gargle twice. Do not rinse mouth.

"Aspirin" Tablets are made in Canada. "Aspirin" is the registered trade-mark of the Bayer Company, Limited. Look for the name Bayer in the form of a cross on every tablet.

A Tense Situation

As the Italo-Ethiopian war progresses, and with economic sanctions imposed by the great majority of the members of the League of Nations gradually tightening, the situation in Europe becomes increasingly grave.

The danger of what, a few months ago, appeared to be little more than a colonizing venture of Mussolini in North Africa at the expense of one of the black races, developing into a world conflagration of even greater magnitude than the Great War of 1914-18 with far greater losses and more fearful consequences to civilization seems more imminent with the lapse of time. While incidents reported from Europe indicate almost daily fluctuations of this world peril there can be no gaining the fact that once again all Europe is an armed camp with all nations breathlessly watching the trend of events and the more powerful ones ready to assume the offensive or defensive as circumstances may require or politico-national exigencies may warrant.

One day despatches contain news which reveal a dreadful maelstrom into which the nations are being sucked willy-nilly, with or without their desire. Two or three days later the news is more reassuring. The crisis of the moment has been bridged. People breathe a little more easily and await the next hair-raising development, reasonably sure that it will soon appear.

And so it goes from day to day. A situation develops which brings tension and alarm. Ominous threats are uttered. Diplomats hastily exchange notes and conversations, threats are withdrawn or modified or "explained". The tension eases. The peril has been averted momentarily at least, but the black shadow remains and will continue to exist until it is either dispelled entirely or becomes a terrific substance.

It hardly seems conceivable that when Mussolini put his threatened invasion of Ethiopia into execution he could have been aware of what was to follow. He must surely have assumed that the League of Nations would be split asunder when its members were faced with the question of carrying out their obligations to prevent or punish violation of the territory of another member or that some of the stronger members would be willing to put a telescope to a blind eye rather than fulfil their duties and run the risk of precipitating a situation which might lead to a general conflagration.

If that was the viewpoint of the dictator of Italy he guessed wrong. If he thought he could bluff the dominating powers of the League, again he guessed wrong. It would have been the easy way out for the League to have begged the question and to have found excuses to permit Mussolini to have his way in North Africa, knowing that the imposition of sanctions might lead to a very dangerous situation. They did not, however, but took their solemn pledges seriously and decided to implement them. Action followed decision.

The peril lies not so much in the mere fact that the League has imposed economic sanctions and is making them effective but in the possibility of some of the members weakening in the face of threats, or of abandoning the position they have taken because of danger from other quarters or because it may become advantageous to do so.

And Mussolini himself is in a dire predicament. He has now gone too far in his adventure to recede without impelling his position among his own countrymen. In fact, recession would spell disaster for him at home. On the other hand he cannot expect to carry his campaign to a successful conclusion with a great majority of the nations cutting off his supplies, but defeat in Ethiopia would terminate his career as Italian dictator. On the horns of this dilemma, it can be assumed that Mussolini will leave no stone unturned to disrupt the accord which exists among the nations who have combined in imposing punitive measures against him.

Mussolini unquestionably knows that there is unrest against British rule in India and Egypt and that the Moroccans and Tunisians would welcome an opportunity to throw off the French yoke. If by stirring up trouble in these countries he could divert some of the energies of these two great powers into other channels it would be of distinct advantage to the Italians.

For it is quite conceivable that the outbreak of strife in these countries would be the precursor of troubles and warfare in other countries and might develop into the low-grade conflict between the Christian countries of the world and the nations which bow their heads to Mohammed.

While it is difficult to forecast what combinations might result from a split in the ranks of the nations now engaged in preventing the culmination of Italy's act of aggression, because of the many diverse interests involved and the ramifications interposed among them, the situation is fraught with perils which may well cause apprehension even among many peoples who at the moment appear remote from danger.

Valuable Instruments Are Treasured By An Ontario Woman

Two violins, both some 200 years old, and one believed to be a genuine Stradivarius, are the treasures of Mrs. Ernest Bloom, Orangeville, Ont. He was born in Brant County, Ontario, and graduated from McGill University with the degree of B.Sc. during the Macdonald regime and while the Marquis of Lansdowne was governor-general, he was employed in the department of interior. He was one of the earliest surveyors in the west. He had a splendid command of the English language.

May Grant Privilege

Australian Women Likely To Act As Jurors In Court

Before the year closes women might be acting as jurors in Australia and also sitting on the bench. The minister of justice of New South Wales, L. O. Martin, has promised to introduce a bill to give women that privilege.

They would not be presiding magistrates, but act as assessors do in industrial courts. They would be permitted to express to the presiding magistrate, with becoming brevity, "it is hoped, their opinions on the cases."

The desire to do this has long held a place in the thoughts of women who are active in public affairs, and they are bent upon translating ambition into fact. The children's court is their first objective. They claim that they are better qualified to deal with young children than the ordinary magistrate. The children's court, however, deals with cases of youths aged 18 years, as well as with younger ones, and even women advocates admit that a man is better able to deal with some older juvenile offenders than a woman.

They argue, however, that a woman's presence, coupled with a word in season to the man presiding might be beneficial. Past and present magistrates do not all agree with that opinion. There are women justices of the peace, of course, in Sydney. Certain ardent feminists ask why they should not sit on the bench, but not even men justices of the peace sit on the bench in Sydney. It is said in quarters most familiar with the working of the courts that they never will.

Alberta Rhodes Scholar

Mark McClung, Son Of Canadian Authoress, Receives Award

University of Alberta Rhodes Scholar for 1935-36 is Mark McClung, 24, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. McClung, of Victoria, formerly of Calgary and Winnipeg. The new Rhodes scholar's mother is Nellie McClung, the noted Canadian authoress. A ward of the scholarship was made known recently.

A student in honors philosophy, Mr. McClung's campus career was marked by brilliant scholarship success. He has been at the University of Alberta for five years and during that time has taken active part in student affairs.

The new Rhodes scholar expects to leave for Oxford in the fall and intends to spend three years overseas. A brother, Jack, solicitor in the provincial attorney-general's department, brought a similar honor to the family on conclusion of his career at the University of Alberta by winning the I.O.D.E. scholarship which enabled him to spend a year in the Old Country.

Savings Deposits

Have Increased Almost A Million Dollars During Past Year

Savings deposits in Canadian chartered banks on Oct. 31 amounted to $1,465,401,708—almost $100,000 more than on the corresponding date in 1934, according to the monthly statement of the banks to the department of finance. There was $21,000,000 increase in deposits since September 30.

Current account deposits also showed a marked increase, being up $35,000,000 in the month and more than $80,000,000 as compared with Oct. 31, 1934.

Deposits outside Canada were up about $6,000,000 in the month and more than $60,000,000 in the year, accounted for in a large measure by the increasing deposits of currency other than Canadian in Canadian banks, which are shown in this column.

Current loans in Canada were down some $15,000,000 in the month and $40,000,000 less than a year ago, while call loans were also down.

License Fees From Radios

Amount Received From Owners

About Same As Last Year
Collection of license fees on radio receiving sets during the current fiscal year has been running about on a par with last year when the total revenue from this source was slightly less than $1,500,000. Beginning with the fiscal year 1932-33 the fee has been $2 for each receiving set.

In spite of the depression and the fact that radio owners on relief have not been pressed for their license fees, collections have been between 90 and 95 per cent. complete, officials at Ottawa said.

Cost of collection has been about an average of 15 cents for each $2 license with a general overhead of 5 per cent.

Inaugurates New Service

Japanese Department Store Has Opened Free Marriage Bureau

Not content with merely imitating the merchandising practices of the West, a large department store in Osaka, Japan, has instituted a new native service for customers. A free marriage bureau has been opened in the store. There men and women who desire to marry may register and furnish pertinent information about themselves.

Marriage in Japan usually is arranged by families, rather than by the individuals concerned, through go-betweens who receive a commission for their services. The new bureau will take over the work customarily done by the go-between.

There is a business reason for the establishment of this free service. The couples who meet through the bureau will purchase the wedding outfit at the store.—New York Times.

Radio Inquiry

Parliamentary Committee May Hold Investigation

A parliamentary committee may be established when the house meets in January to investigate radio broadcasting in Canada, particularly the administration of the radio commission. It was learned recently.

It was understood every phase of broadcasting would be probed including the possibility of regulating broadcasting by a general manager instead of a commission of three.

During the campaign Mr. MacKenzie King took exception to certain broadcasts under the name of "Mr. Sage" and promised reform of broadcasting regulations to stop abuse of public men. It is probable the "Mr. Sage" broadcast will be investigated.

Two hundred pounds of mail was unloaded and speeded to the post-office for delivery, while Capt. Edwin Musick, skipper of the flying boat, and his eight-man crew were welcomed by officials.

No Substitute For Butter

It Is A Concentrated Energy And Heat Producer

Butter is one of the foods which has been widely used for many centuries, but whose true nutritional merit has only recently been brought to light, according to Laura C. Pepper, of the Dairy and Cold Storage Branch, Dominion Department of Agriculture. Recognizing the importance of adequate amounts of fats in diet and the valuable contributions made to health by butter, modern scientists uphold the generous use of this superior fat.

Palatability and high food value are the two qualities which earn for butter the distinction of being "the fat for which there is no substitute." Fats recommended for their tasteful properties hold little or no interest for the woman who prides herself on her cooking. She knows it is butter that makes cream sauces look and taste so rich; it is the butter used in cakes and cookies that evokes praise from friends; and, similarly, it is butter that insures excellent flavour and colour in many dishes prepared for the family table.

As for food value, butter is a concentrated energy producer, yielding 2 1/2 times as much heat in the body as the sugar and starch foods. This is a strong argument in favour of using plenty of butter, particularly during cold weather when the body requires extra heat. Butter is easily digested and readily and completely assimilated by the body; it contains small quantities of lime and phosphorus, and in addition has a high vitamin content which distinguishes it from other fats. It is an exceptionally good source of Vitamin A, which builds up resistance to disease and promotes normal health and growth. Butter is also one of the few foods which provide Vitamin D—the sunshine vitamin—so necessary for the development of bones and teeth.

Now Linked By Wireless

Lone Island Of Grand Cayman Connected With Jamaica

An island paradise where time for centuries has stood still, heard a belated warning of the march of progress, when wireless communication was established between Jamaica and Grand Cayman, one of her dependencies.

Lying about 300 miles northwest of Jamaica, Grand Cayman is the "whitest" island in the West Indies, more than 4,000 out of a total population of 5,000 being from English stock. Many of the original settlers came to Jamaica about the time Charles II. was put on the throne, and when his governor began to make trouble for them here, they moved to Grand Cayman. Others are descendants of English pirates and shipwrecked seamen who were the terror of the Caribbean more than 200 years ago. Piracy that brought uncertain rewards was abandoned for the easier trade of wrecking—luring ships ashore by false beacon fires.

A religious people, they habitually prayed ships would be caught on the coral reef bounding the island, and a story is told how a congregation who ran out into a storm to loot a wreck were hailed by the parson: "Brethren, wait for the benediction, and let's all start fair."

But to-day the Grand Caymans are described as the happiest and most law-abiding people in the world. So peaceful have they become, it is said the only sin they commit is in dropping their h's.

Until Governor Sir Edward Denham of Jamaica formally opened the wireless service, the only communication with Grand Cayman was by boat.

FLEMING'S FOLLY

— BY —
LAWRENCE A. KEATING

SYNOPSIS

Here is an absorbing and exciting story of a fight against stubborn prejudice and a bitter personal malignancy—a girl and a man battling ridicule, sabotage, bullets, and the treachery that would turn them against each other.

The story opens with Link Fleming addressing a meeting of Boone County cattlemen, called together with the object of forming an irrigation company.

(Now Go On With The Story)

Thus, Link Fleming knew that to win Roper to his dream was to spell success. Only Kilgo could swing ranchers into line for irrigation. He was now carrying out his promise of yesterday so that Link could present Soak Torney, the drink-broken city engineer he had discovered in an Alti-sa saloon. A mere shell of the man he had once been, he still was as enthusiastic about irrigating barren land as Fleming himself.

"Buz is a regular fighter," cocked Kilgo grined at the crowd, pointing his arm around young Hamilton. "I'm looking for him too, 'cause I reckon you all know his sister and me are—Well," he said embarrassedly, "Helen will be back in town pretty soon, and maybe then she'll let me tell you about our plans."

"But that's off the track now. I don't go in for facts as you men know, and maybe irrigation is one. Link, tell us about it; reckon that's what you're up here for, ain't it?"

This was his chance, his long-sought opportunity to win the ranchers to his views! He had prepared for this moment for a year. Enthusiasm swept over him as he began when he pondered the new means of improving the range. His pulse sped faster, and standing at full height before them, he chose his words with care.

"If you men could raise alfalfa to feed your stock winters, and use your home grass in the summer, you wouldn't need to worry whether the government passed rules about the foothills or not."

"We ain't farmers. We're cattlemen!" Buz snapped.

"Well, something's got to be done, because we're going to be harmed from the foothills, our range is too thin to support steers all year round. Water the waste land that's all around us and you can grow alfalfa enough to feed your beef and maybe have some left over to sell. The secret is, irrigation!"

"You got several hundred acres that hasn't been good for anything. It ain't worth as much as ordinary range, and grass brings only fifty cents an acre. But if I water that wasteland—" He paused impressively. "It will be worth at least a hundred dollars an acre!"

There was a swift exchange of surprised, doubtful, and questioning looks. Kilgo lifted a bushy eyebrow at his friend and henchman, Jackpot Mell. The proprietor of the Half Moon Saloon kept his face a mask but nodded slightly. His lean, wiry fingers toyed with the watch chain of shiny nuggets draped across his flowered vest. Fleming, from his raised position, followed the significant looks and felt a flash of uncertainty. But perhaps it was only his habitual suspicion of the Box 50 owner and his suave cronies, a cold blooded killer.

"From fifty cents to a hundred bucks an acre is pretty long talk," Soak Howland muttered skeptically. "Yeah, and dammin' up water costs money. How do you figure to finance it, Link?" Honest John Mulrooney inquired.

"By forming the Boone County Improvement Association. We'll all buy stock according to the size of our spreads. That will provide capital for the irrigation ditches and dams."

"Well, o' course," Kilgo pointed out, "there's no use to form an association until we're shore the thing'll pay. Way it looks to me, we oughta have the judgment of somebody that knows. Boys, how about lettin' us to Soak Torney? Soak's done engineers' all over the world. He can tell us about Link's scheme, whether it'll work or not."

This, of course, was an adroit leading up to the winning of the whole throng of cattlemen. "I figure to go on what Torney says," Roper went on generously. "How about the rest of you guys?"

Why, the thing was now almost a certainty! If Roper endorsed Torney, the others were certain to follow like sheep. With eagerness he heard hard to make, Fleming was the man to lead.

"Reckon Soak knows plenty about engineers", at that," Mulrooney conceded. "Buz, will you go along on whatever we decide? How about you, Benson? All right, Link, let's hear the facts."

The Loop owner realized that perhaps he had misjudged Kilgo. He was being helpful now, and seemed really anxious to know more about irrigation, which he had so derisively opposed during the last year. Yes, Link felt he had done the man an injustice. Roper wasn't as bad as he was painted.

The important thing was to seize this advantage. Turning, he beckoned to Torney. "Come on up here and tell us about it, Soak," he invited as casually as he could manage. "You're the man knows about waterin' land. We want your opinion."

All eyes watched the rugged, unkempt figure of the saloon hanger-on rise from his chair and begin to shuffle forward in his furtive, hang-dog way. Vague apprehension made Link worse as he saw that Soak was the worse for a recent drinking bout, though he had promised earnestly to remain sober for this meeting. His eyes were lustreless and his whole man of a epileptic barfy.

However—Fleming shrugged—it was merely Torney's endorsement as a civil engineer that was needed to clinch the support of Boone County ranchers. He appeared sufficiently in control of his senses to give that. Pahaw, what damage could he do, even in his present condition?

"What's your idea on this?" Link asked. "Could we build an irrigation plant here?"

The man wet his lips while he blinked self-consciously. "Reckon you can build it anywhere you want."

Roper grinned at him secretly, and nodded. "How much would a proposition like this cost you?" Link went on, drawing him out.

The engineer rubbed his reddish nose as he studied the floor in front of him. "About thirty-five or forty thousand dollars for a starter. You could build part and operate it while you raise more money to go on with the scheme."

"Raise more money? That? What do you mean? What's the total?" Howland demanded.

"Around sixty thousand."

Several men gasped. "If you want your land to increase in value I'll take some investment, of course. But if we all chip in it won't be so bad. The thing is sure to be worth while," argued Fleming.

There was a slight pause. "That's the point," Roper drawled slowly. "Will it be worth while? If it will, I've about made up my mind to go in it. How about you boys?"

He gazed from face to face. Several men frowned hesitantly, then nodded. If there were any who distrusted Kilgo's leadership, they feared to oppose it. A few looked grim and several appeared reluctant. But the Box 50 owner's declaration applied to all of them. As usual, they liked what he did, follow him like sheep.

"That's settled then. Me—I'm willin', like you boys, to gamble on Torney's say-so. Should we go ahead with irrigation or stay out? That's the thing in a nutshell. Ain't it, Link?"

"Exactly. Now, Soak," he went on, striving to keep triumph out of his voice, "how about it?"

Torney swallowed hard. He cast a furtive, pleading look at Fleming. His heavy gaze swerved, to hold as if riveted on Kilgo and the cold-eyed Jackpot Mell as he answered in his husky, half-audible whisper.

"You could build dams and raise alfalfa—sure. But it'd be a crazy fool thing to do. Irrigation sounds all right, but it's nothing but a new-fangled way to waste money."

"Roper's said all along this ain't any good," he went on hurriedly. "My advice to you men is to stick to Roper—then you're safe. Why, I wouldn't give two cents for all the irrigation dams an' ditches in the United States."

CHAPTER II.

Silence fell like a blanket over the meeting of cattlemen. Fleming's jaw sagged, and his stunned amazement was mirrored on every face in the throng. For everyone, of course, had fully expected Torney to give emphatic approval. Why, the ranchers who stood blinking, before him had been almost won over! Had it not been for this sudden reversal, coming with the unexpectedness of a shot in the dark, the irrigation scheme would proceed to organization with all Boone County backing it.

All eyes fixed on Link. Because he was the originator and ardent advocate of the plan, reaction was of prime interest. While he stood with an incredulous, dismayed expression on his tanned face, Roper Kilgo glanced again at Jackpot Mell. Their look lasted but an instant; then they turned their faces front. No hint of feeling was in their exchange, but deep in Fleming's heart distrust sparkled alive.

As positive as if he had heard exultant words between them, he knew why Soak Torney had suddenly changed his attitude toward irrigation.

He must have been reached—threatened or persuaded from his true conviction. Only yesterday the man had been as enthusiastic as Link!

At once his mind began to build on this thought. Roper had always opposed the thing, until yesterday. His seeming friendliness then was the mask of his ruse. That was clear enough now. Perhaps he feared that his leadership, his grip on local cattlemen, was at stake. If Link put this thing into operation he, not Kilgo, would become the chief to whom weaker men looked for guidance. Roper's power would be gone.

Yes, that must be it. Kilgo used this means to kill forever talk of irrigation, in which he did not believe himself. He wanted the subject scotched—and he had chosen a means to accomplish this with wily astuteness that did him credit, schemer that he was.

There was a stir in the crowd. "Huh!" Seth Howland grunted, "reckon that's settled. This waterin' business ain't any better than I thought."

"Hold on, boys!" Link looked about for Torney, but realized that Soak had shambled quickly off during the taut, astonished silence. He cleared his throat scarcely knowing what he could say to hold them, to Get new consideration of this matter on which he was so earnestly convinced.

Then sudden anger waved over him, and with both fists clenched until the knuckles showed white, he spoke in a low, intense tone. "Somebody's tampered with Torney. That wasn't his real opinion! Why, he's told me a hundred times irrigation would do wonders for us all. We've worked on this thing, drawn up blueprints, even. Somebody influenced Soak, made him say what he said," he cried angrily. "I tell you men you're going to regret it if you don't irrigate!"

An Expensive Privilege

Player Who Makes Hole-In-One Deserves A Reward

The doubtful privilege of buying drinks for everybody, which used to be the time-honored custom for all golfers playing a hole in one stroke, is being abandoned in London, England.

In future they will be rewarded for accomplishing the feat. The ambition of all golfers, a hole in one, invariably cost at least $25 in drinks and entertainment to fellow-players, and the pleasure of doing it thereby was minimized.

It wasn't so bad in pre-war days when whiskey cost less than a dollar a bottle, but now when it sells around $2.50, a hole in one is pretty expensive.

So the Wilderness club, Kent, has decided that the player doing a hole in one shall be entertained with a meal with full liquor trimmings "on the house." In addition, his green fees will be refunded.

"We feel that the player who does a hole in one deserves his reward," said Major W. H. Hodgson, secretary of the club. "The last time that happened on this course it cost the players $55. It was the 18th hole, which measures 265 yards, and naturally a good deal of interest was caused."

Secretaries of other clubs have voiced their general approval of the scheme which is likely to become general.

Motor Firm Buys Horses

Foundry Employees Work On Farm During Slack Periods

A new idea in industry was brought to light recently with the announcement that a factory making automobile parts was buying horses. The Holmes Foundry Co., Ltd., a manufacturer of automobile cylinders at Sarnia, Ont., purchased three head of Percheron horses for a total of $5,000.

L. G. Blunt, president, explained the horses were used on vegetable farms owned by the firm. His industry was seasonal, he said, and during the off-season his men went out on the farm and grew all types of vegetables. As a result their off time was put into profitable use.

The men were not paid for their farm work, but the total produce was divided among the number of workmen, the company footing the bill for land, seed, implements, and horses.

The reason for this, he said, lay in the fact his industry demanded skilled workmen. If all employees were laid off when the slack season came it would cost a tremendous amount of money to either find them again or train new employees when the busy season again came around.

In this manner, he said, all employees are kept busy and all are available immediately they are needed. This avoids closing down the plant when the public demand for automobile cylinders slackens.

Views Prize Cattle

Lord Tweedsmuir Was Interested In Royal Winter Fair Exhibits

A governor-general in blue serge suit and black fedora looked over with critical eye the livestock product of a prince's ranch, brought east from the Alberta foothills to adorn the Royal Winter Fair in Toronto.

Lord Tweedsmuir dropped into the fair with his son, Hon. Alastair Buchan, and had a look at Epton Orator—otherwise the pride of Pekisko Creek—from the Prince of Wales E. P. Ranch. The E. P. bull, winner in the two-year-old Shorthorn competition, was brought from his stall for the governor-general to look at, but was good-natured about it.

Lord Tweedsmuir also examined the University of Alberta cattle, and was much interested in the grand champion cattle shown by Waldo Skinner, Senneville, Que., and Mount Victoria Farms, Hudson Heights, Que.

The governor-general said he would "very much like to see the hogs," and followed them up with sheep and dogs. "There's a Cotswold sheep, a thing you don't often see in the Cotswolds now," he remarked at one stage.

Earlier, His Excellency visited the blind display shop and bought a tray after watching the blind handicraftsmen and women at work.

School At Scotland Yard

Police Teach Methods To Representatives From Other Countries

Scotland Yard is teaching the world how to go about its police work. There are few countries that have not sent representatives to learn from the Metropolitan Police. Among the next batch of "pupils" will be detectives from New Zealand. Police officers have come from Newfoundland, Hong Kong, Singapore, Canada, Australia, France, Spain, Germany, and other Continental countries to glean much from our methods.

Superintendent Batley, chief of the Fingerprint Department, is going to lecture to "pupils" on his subject. Chief Inspector Rowe will demonstrate the Criminal Records Office. The wireless cars and broadcasting methods of the "Yard" will be explained by the Radio Chief, Chief Constable Best. Sir Bernard Spilsbury will give lectures on poisons. Dr. Rachel Lynch, the Home Office analyst, will teach his own subject.

The value of scientific research—the examination of bullets, cartridges, and clothing—will be shown by Dr. Davidson, chief of the Crime Laboratory at Hendon. Finally, there will be special lectures on crime detection by Chief Constable Horwell and Superintendent Hambrook of the C.I.D.—Overseas Daily Mail.

Little Helps For This Week

But this I say brethren, the time is short. 1 Corinthians 7:29.

I sometimes feel the thread of life is slender, And soon with me the labor will be wrought; Then grow my heart to other hearts more tender. The time is short.

You who are letting miserable misunderstandings run on from year to year, meaning to clear them up some day; you who are keeping wretched quarrels alive because you cannot get along with your neighbor; you who are letting your pride and kill them; you who are passing men suddenly on the street, not speaking to them out of some silly spite, and yet knowing it would fill you with remorse if you heard that one of them were dead tomorrow morning; you who are letting your neighbor stare at you because he is dying of starvation, or letting your friend's heart ache for a word of appreciation or sympathy which you mean to give him some day—if you could only know and see all of a sudden that the time is short, how it would break the spell. How you would go and do instantly that which you might never have another chance to do.

OFTEN RELIEVES BY MORNING

Before a miserable cold gets you down, go to bed and apply Vicks VapoRub. Two generations have proved VapoRub the surest help to a milder, shorter cold. Just rubbed on throat and chest at bedtime, VapoRub acts two ways at once:

1. By stimulation through the skin, like a poultice or plaster.
2. By inhalation of its penetrating medicated vapors, released by body heat and breathed in to inflamed air-passages. Continuing through the night, this combined vapor-poultice action loosens phlegm—soothes irritated membranes—helps break congestion. Often by morning the worst of the cold is over.

For Fewer and Shorter Colds Note for your family: Vicks has developed, especially for home use, a practical Plan for Better Control of Colds. This commonsense guide to fewer and shorter colds has been clinically tested by practicing physicians and further proved in everyday home use by millions. Full details of Vicks Plan come in each VapoRub package.

We are complaining about the heavy mail sacks for the West the last few nights. Understand that Happy knows quite a lot about it.

The Bessborough Hotel at Saskatoon, newest link in the chain of the Canadian National Railways hotel system, was opened December 10th, it was officially announced by Hon. C. P. Fullerton K. C. Chairman of the Board of Trustees. The new hotel has approximately 260 bedrooms and has been carefully laid out and arranged to meet the needs of the travelling public in Western Canada. It is located on the bank of the South Saskatchewan river at the foot of 21st Street.

A popular feature of the ground floor is the cafeteria where excellent food will be served carefully at low cost. On the first floor is located the lobby, hotel offices, lounge, banquet and main dining room. The upper floors are devoted to the bedrooms which have been so laid out that the guest fully appreciates the "home away from home" atmosphere.

The Bessborough is centrally located, handy to the stores and business houses of Saskatoon and promises to be an ideal meeting ground for not only local people but for visitors who come to Saskatoon from country and outside points.

Mr. H. W. Aslin, formerly manager of The Macdonald, in Edmonton, has been appointed manager and goes to Saskatoon with a full knowledge of the needs of the travelling public. Visitors will be made comfortable at modest cost in making The Bessborough their headquarters while visiting Saskatoon.

Saskatoon, Sask., December 10th—Among the visitors in Saskatoon to attend the opening of The Bessborough, latest addition to the Canadian National Railways' hotel system, was J. Van Wyck, general manager of the hotel system.

Mr. Van Wyck who has been in the hotel business all his life and is just as efficient with a cook's apron on in the kitchen as he is directing activities from his desk in the general manager's office in the Chateau Laurier at Ottawa, was very enthusiastic over the future of The Bessborough.

"While The Bessborough is most up-to-date and beautifully furnished with the latest of equipment, I wish to point out most emphatically that the hotel is located in the centre of Western Canada's great farming and agricultural territory. We will therefore cater particularly to the farmers' merchants and citizens of these farming communities, and every effort will be made to make these visitors comfortably at home when they make the Bessborough their headquarters in Saskatoon.

"One of the outstanding features of The Bessborough, in my opinion, will be the cafeteria. This has been laid out as a result of careful study and we can assure our patrons that only the best of food will be used in serving attractive meals at exceedingly low cost.

"As Saskatoon is such an important business centre, we are anxious for visitors to the city to make The Bessborough their headquarters. It will be our pleasure to make these visitors comfortable whether their stay be for a day, week, month or longer. In any event we want every visitor to Saskatoon to come to The Bessborough and at least look the hotel over," declared Mr. Van Wyck.

W. I. Bazaar

The Bazaar and Silver tea held by the Chinook Women's Institute on Saturday was a great success.

All the articles in the Bazaar were sold in a short time. The "produce" basket proved a very popular raffle and was won by Mrs. W. Seeger. The tea tables were well patronized at all times and the liberal donations placed in the silver dishes proved how much everyone appreciated the tasty lunch.

A hearty vote of thanks is tendered to Cooley Bros. for the use of their showroom, which makes an ideal place to hold such an affair and their generosity in allowing us such free use of the garage is much appreciated.

We also wish to give a vote of thanks to the C. G. I. T. who helped us serve tea; to Mrs. Berry who knitted so many lovely pairs of mittens; to the ladies who donated cakes and to all others who helped in any way to make the Bazaar and tea a success. The sum of $37.75 was realized.

COLLHOLME "NEWSLETS"

I was very interested in listening to a discussion the other night in which a well known resident of the district south of town was engaged with some of the ladies present. This gentleman is not perhaps of a very congruent nature and usually seeking a debate, and on this occasion it was not long developing on the subject of the advantages of being a bachelor. He certainly scored a point that the ladies themselves for once could not answer. His contention was that since he was keeping house alone, he was able to keep limburger cheese in the house where as before he was forced to keep it in the granary and often consume it there.

Observer commends the present S. C. government on the increased efficiency in administration which recent correspondence received by the M. D. of Collholme has brought to his notice especially in regard to the relief Dept. and it is to be hoped that none of their supporters suffer from cold feet this winter due to the fact that they have discontinued giving overshoes in relief clothing orders. No doubt this will cause increased effort on the part of the recipient in working out M. D. share in construction of dam or work on roads in cold weather. It may have been the viewpoint of the council when they passed a motion on Saturday to increase the amount to 58 1/2 per cent. This was in line with the Dept's suggestion. They at least had some sympathy for the relief recipient when they stated men over 60 would not be forced to work but they could do voluntarily if they wished and that no one work in severe weather this concession was accounted for by the reason that only fleece lined underwear is on the clothing list and apparently the government does not intend the relief recipient to stay in bed when he is unable to work owing to weather conditions since they have refused blankets to these unfortunate individuals. However it is some consolation that our own Provincial member is making every effort to obtain coal for them. This was very much in evidence when a letter received from him was read at the meeting on Saturday. It is to be hoped that the local council show their sympathy in a more practical way and not be too economical in relief coal orders. It is very apparent that owing to the condition of roads it will be impossible to go to the mine for it and your readers will have to agree that they would at least suffer from cold feet if they had to make the trip, so its an ill wind that blows no one any good.

Saturday's meeting of the Collholme Council was a little more interesting than the ones held recently, and the discussion very much like the temperature of the school room a little on the warm side especially when the question of enforced collection of taxes by a figure was up for discussion, but after apology's had been offered by certain individuals an amicable settlement was arrived at. The By law authorizing the issue of seed grain in the spring met with strong opposition on the part of one councillor, who apparently did not agree with the Provincial Gov'ts idea of balancing the
